NELSON MASS

Joseph Haydn

Often described as one of Haydn's greatest works, and also known as Missa in Angustiis (Mass for troubled times), this mass was written in 1798 during turbulent times in Europe when Napoleon had won no less than four great battles with Austria in one year. Shortly after it was finished Admiral Horatio Nelson dealt a stunning blow by defeating Napoleon at the Battle of the Nile and hence the work acquired the nickname: Lord Nelson Mass.
